

MAKING MAKER LEARNERS: A FREE ONE-DAY WORKSHOP FOR THOSE WORKING WITH YOUTH

When: Tuesday, Aug. 23, 2016
9:30am - 4:30pm

Where: Butman-Fish Library, Public Libraries of Saginaw

Register: makinglibraries.si.umich.edu/road-trip

Looking to add open-ended, hands-on learning to your school, library, community center, troop, or civic group? The maker movement offers students the opportunity to explore the intersection of technology, design, aesthetics, creativity, and prototyping. In this one-day workshop, you'll gain practical strategies for envisioning your maker program, identifying maker needs, designing formal and informal learning activities, and assessing them fairly. Through discussion, networking time, and hands-on exploration, you'll come away with concrete ideas you can use to build or enhance making for youth. SCECHs available; lunch is on your own. Questions? contactmichiganmakers@umich.edu.

Sponsored by the University of Michigan School of Information's Making in Michigan Libraries Project in partnership with the Public Libraries of Saginaw. Funding made possible in part by the Institute for Museum and Library Services, RE-05-15-0021-15.
